J. Stanton King, 1922–2001

I am saddened to report that J. Stanton King, PhD, Editor Emeritus of Clinical Chemistry, passed away on October 22, 2001. Stan shaped this journal and influenced clinical chemists throughout the world. His influence lives on in many ways, both obvious and subtle.

As I write this, on the office walls are only two objects: One is a print of a pen-and-ink drawing of the conference center in Winston Salem where members of the Editorial Board met regularly with Dr. King when he was the Executive Editor of the Journal. The other is a note (now framed) that he sent to me after I took over the duties of editing the journal that he had left to us in such excellent shape. Both are reminders of his legacy and of the high standards by which we are to be judged.

More will be written about Dr. King in a future issue. To that end, readers who have personal experiences of Dr. King are invited to send us accounts of them. Unique items will be returned. Memorials may be made to the Dr. J. Stanton King Scholarship Fund, Berea College, Berea, KY 40404.

Revised Axiom of Academic Medicine

If it’s new, it’s not true: if it’s true, it’s not important; but if it’s new and it’s true and it is important, then we knew it all along.

—Phil Gold in Academic Medicine, June 1995

Corrected Call for Nominations

The AACC sent a corrected call for nominations. Note the positions to be filled (second sentence below) and the new second paragraph.

AACC’s Nominating Committee is accepting nominations for the 2002 association election. The president-elect, two positions on the Board of Directors, and four positions on the Nominating Committee are to be elected to serve, beginning January 1, 2003. Nominations should be sent in writing to: Laurence M. Demers, PhD, Pathology Department, MCH083, the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center, Pennsylvania State University, 500 University Drive, Hershey, PA 17033-0850 (Fax 717-531-5380; e-mail lmd4@psu.edu). You should indicate the office for which the nominee is proposed and include one or two sentences explaining the nomination. All nominations must be received by January 31, 2002. The Nominating Committee will obtain the candidates’ consent to run for office.

According to the association by-laws, in this election, members of the Southern California, Chicago, New York, and North Carolina Local Sections are not eligible for election to the Nominating Committee for the next term.

Members of the 2002 Nominating Committee are: Laurence M. Demers, PhD (chair); Daniel H. Farkas, PhD; Catherine A. Hammett-Stabler, PhD; Ellis Jacobs, PhD; Janet Lineback, PhD; Daniel Nealon, PhD; Donald R. Parker, PhD; and Mary Kay Walker.
